Welcome to the 16th Annual International Feng Shui Convention (IFSC)

Eastern culture has been flourishing and evolving since time immemorial, as has its rich heritage of literary works, immortalized by the flow of time. Amongst the most famous of these, is the I-Ching (Yijing) – a Classic which has been hailed as the epitome of the category, and one of the foundations of Chinese culture. The I-Ching is based on simple concepts like Yin and Yang, but incorporates great complexity, comprising the dynamic theory of change which governs our lives and the flow of events. The apparent simplicity of the I-Ching has allowed its reach to be extensive, while its complexity has allowed for limitless variations and interpretations. We could even say that Qi gong, San Yuan Feng Shui, Bazi, Traditional Chinese Medicine, Mei Hua Yi Shu (Plum Blossom divination), Qi Men Dun Jia, and even modern computing technology – all stem from the knowledge of I-Ching. As such, the convention this year shall revolve around the exploration of the I-Ching, and how it has naturally developed into such a complex, malleable form of practical knowledge.

9 November 2019 , Saturday | Day 1

0900 – 0940 Registration and Arrival, Coffee and Networking

0940 – 1010 Opening Session

Opening Speech by IFSA President
Award of Certificate – IFSA Accredited Feng Shui Masters
Letter of Appreciation to Friend of IFSA
Opening Ceremony – Ribbon Cutting

1010 - 1055 Keynote: Ancient Chinese Wisdom and Artificial Intelligence
Associate Professor Chua Chee Lay

Among all the treasures that Chinese culture has produced over a three thousand year period, Feng Shui is one of the most valuable, but yet often neglected. Discover how Feng Shui combines the wisdom of the ancient Chinese culture and technologies, and how we can tap on the superpower of artificial intelligence to bring Feng Shui to greater height in this digital era.

1055 -1140 Wang Huang I-Ching for Everyday Problem Solving
GM Raymond Lo

I Ching Divination is a very effective forecasting system that offers a peep into the future, enabling us to make better choices and decisions. Most people refer to I Ching as the “Book of Change” composed by King Wen of Chou Dynasty and Confucius of the Warring States between 1000-500 BC. However, as both authors were not fortune-tellers, the “Book of Change” is more a book of philosophy rather than one for forecasting. The most practical I Ching system is the King Wen Oracle system or Wang Huang Kua, or Fire Pearl Forest that is popularly applied by fortune tellers with amazing logic and accuracy. Dive into the historical background and technique of Wang Huang Kua with demonstrated examples on how the skill can be a tool to understand and predict future events.

1140 - 1220 Feng Shui & Health

Master Tyler Rowe

The trigrams of the I Ching appear in two distinct contexts within 'Classical Fengshui' (as it was practiced during the 'Classical period' approximately 2000 years ago, this refers to its origins from 'Classical sources' and not the erroneous modern use of the term to denote any practice originating prior to the 20th Century). The first application is in the trigram correlations of the Former Heaven arrangement to mountain dragons and the four landform images. The second is based on the Later Heaven sequence and the correspondences of the trigram virtues to the living. This presentation will investigate the use of trigrams in Classical Fengshui with an emphasis on explaining their anatomical forms and physiological functions in the body.

1220 - 1320

Lunch Break

1320 - 1405 The Birth of San Yuan Feng Shui – I-Ching and the Luopan

GM Dr Stephen Skinner

This session traces the connection between the trigrams and hexagrams of the I Ching/Yijing and the development of the Feng Shui luopan. Originally, the 8 trigrams were simply markers for the 8 directions. The earliest rings were mainly astronomical such as the 28 Moon Mansions. It was not until 1019 CE that the 24 Mountains were connected to just 60 hexagrams on the San He luopan. Shao Yong, a Song dynasty Chinese philosopher, was interested in cycles of time yuan 元 (Cycles) and generated circular arrangements of the hexagrams. This was later used on the luopan as a circular arrangement of 60 hexagrams matched with the 60 jiazi. In 1827 the number of hexagrams on the luopan was increased from 60 to 64, and so San Yuan Feng Shui was born.

1405 - 1445 Using the I-Ching to Select and Evaluate a Property

Master Jen Stone

Learn the King Wen Oracle Way of using I Ching Divination to select and evaluate properties. This is especially ideal for those interested in using I Ching to enhance the Feng Shui of the house and/or to align an auspicious time to sell or buy properties. This method complements the use of Flying Star Feng Shui and BaZi Four Pillars of Destiny. Real life cases will be examined.

1445 - 1520 I-Ching for Healthy Life

Master Maureen Chu

The Chinese traditional concept of health is about balance between Yin and Yang and among the 5 basic elements. This theory is also the foundation of I Ching. The King Wen Oracle system labels the hexagrams with 12 earthly branches and 6 animals. These are elements that enable the interpretation of health problems by observing the weakness of elements and their inter-activities such as clashes, combinations and conquer. Hence, it is also a handy tool to gain insight into the nature of sickness and forecast its future progress to facilitate appropriate cure. Examples will be used to demonstrate show how I Ching can be an effective tool to managing health problems and selecting appropriate precautionary measures against sickness.

1520- 1540

Coffee/Tea Break

1540 - 1620 I-Ching and Psychology

Master Dr Sabine B Kullak

The Book of Changes embodies a rich philosophical heritage and has been widely used over centuries in various settings. As a powerful tool to reveal the potential of a given situation, it has helped people to understand the unconscious forces they face and find ways to tap on guidance and inspiration. Therefore, it is often claimed that I-Ching and Psychology are interlinked. Learn about the connection between the I-Ching's philosophical views and the concepts of modern Psychology and what we can draw from them when dealing with present day questions.

1620 - 1700 I-Ching & Business

Mr Mark Tan

As one of the 5 classics of China, I-Ching has become a fundamental philosophy that has moulded Chinese thinking. While it is understood that the East and the West approach business differently, many business philosophies and management styles in Asian societies can be traced back to the philosophy of I-Ching. Embrace the knowledge of I-Ching and gain new appreciation for the changing dynamics in today's globalised business world.

10 November 2019 , Sunday | Day 2

0930 – 1000 Registration and Arrival, Coffee and Networking

1000 – 1040 I-Ching & Qi Men Dun Jia: The Gift of Predicting the Future
Mr Lim Eng Cheong

Our unwavering curiosity often drives us to seek answers to life's big questions about our destiny and future. Can I quit my job? Will my business be successful? When can I retire? On one hand, I-Ching (易经 Yi Jing) is hailed as the amazing Classic on futurology that deciphers the code of life and the laws governing the universe. On the other hand, Qi Men Dun Jia (奇门遁甲) is a higher-level of divination methodology that offers clairvoyant vision to predict outcomes. When used together, both tools collectively form the best approach to predict the future. Find out more about how these inherited gifts can provide beneficial insights into the future, and help us lead more fruitful lives.

1040 -1115 Divining with Zi Wei Dou Shu
Master Dr Anna Zarasyan

The ancient Chinese concept of Yin and Yang reflects the fundamental laws of nature. It forms the basis and foundation of all Chinese metaphysics, including its divination arts such as Zi Wei Dou Shu. Yin and Yang are complementing forces, which form duality and opposition at the same time. They cannot be separated, as neither Yin nor Yang are absolutes to exist solitarily. This session explores how the principles of opposition and conjunction translate into Zi Wei Dou Shu (Si Hua 四化) chart analysis, with case studies demonstrating how the I Ching principles of transformation, presence-absence and interdependence are employed in Zi Wei Dou Shu divination.

1115 - 1155 Ancient Conditions for Effective Acquisition and Analysis of Trigrams and Hexagrams – A Mystical Approach
Master Jacek Kryg

When consulting the oracle of I-Ching, the most important aspect is drawing appropriate trigrams and hexagrams best connected with our situation. The old texts often mention conditions of divination, of which observance somehow ensures the efficacy of the "real" hexagram. The question that arises is how far simplification of old procedures can go before it affects the quality of outcomes. Is it possible to simplify activities such as the storage of the Book of Changes, way of divination, and process of divination itself? Is it important to take the right position for consultation to achieve the best direction appeal to the sacred sphere? It is worth considering these questions because modern circumstances bring about many temptations to take shortcuts to approaches that yield best in their own time.

1155 - 1300 Lunch Break

1300 - 1340 I-Ching and Feng Shui
Master Kiitsu Yamamichi

What stages and processes of I-Ching thought have sublimed into the Compass School of Feng Shui? Journey to explore this historical transition and the theory of the art through the comparison of I-Ching compass techniques. This includes the Five Ghost Transports wealth of San Ke School, Eight Mansion School, The Eight Dragon Gate Water Method, Flying Star Feng Shui, Xuan Kong Liu Fa, Xuan Kong Da Gua, and more.

1340 - 1420 I-Ching and Architecture
Master Anita Zou

Discussing I-Ching from the mind set of Feng Shui architecture is a new design language altogether. I-Ching offers a unique indeterminacy principle: a state of 'chance' that allows our subconscious mind to be freed from suppressing 'logical ego', thus offering new perspectives in problem solving and design creation. Uncover the potential power of I-Ching in the analysis of Feng Shui even before stepping into the house. A tool that enables us to see things through another perspective before going into the 'logic' of numbers and mapping directions. The use of I-Ching principles in architecture and interior will also be discussed: how do we instil the spirit of indeterminacy and 'design by chance' to permeate through the space, while personalising it for the ultimate comfort of the end user.

1420 - 1500 I-Ching and Different Schools of Feng Shui
Master Yap Boh Chu

I-Ching is the Chinese classics normally used in divination to guide decision making. The source of I-Ching is Ba Gua, and it is this same Ba Gua that today's Feng Shui is originated from. The Early Heaven Ba Gua enabled the understanding and development of theories which were then applied to the Later Heaven Ba Gua. Of the 2 major schools of Feng Shui, the Xuan Gong Da Gua is most directly linked to I-Ching through the use of 64 hexagrams. This session will illustrate how some formulas of Feng Shui schools were derived from Ba Gua and I-Ching, and how Xuan Gong Da Gua and I-Ching can be interwoven into Feng Shui practice to achieve the desired results. The use of I-Ching in diagnosing Feng Shui of properties will also be covered.

1500- 1520

Coffee/Tea Break

1520 - 1600 I-Ching Concepts and Applications

Master SBS Surendran

I-Ching, the basis of all Chinese metaphysics including Feng Shui, is a study of symbols, formulas and permutations. The combination of the Yang & Yin lines gives rise to the 64 different hexagrams used in divination. The Yin & Yang or the polarities of the universal forces have commonalities with the life force in a way that correlates our DNA to the binary system. Learn the basics of I-Ching and its evolution, and its relationship to our DNA, Binary system, and Human body. Find out how divination through I-Ching has similarities in practice across cultures according to modern day research. Finally, get a brief insight of time dimension calculations based on the Imperial Time Classics (Huang Ji Jing Shi) method to derive a macro-view of what fortunes Year 2020 may bring.

1600 - 1640 Bazi & Health

Master Goh Guan Leong

Can our body shed light on our physical well-being? When there are 'blockages', it prevents optimal energy from being supplied to different parts of our body. This results in pains and discomforts (通则不痛, 痛则不通). Discover how the physical appearance of your eyes, mouth, nose and ears translate to the health of your liver, heart, spleen, lungs and kidneys. When analysed together with Bazi, it offers greater insight to your health scorecard. The use of illustrations can also support the assessment of certain illnesses. Tips on improving blood circulation to boost energy and health through simple massages will also be shared.

1640 - 1720 Q & A Session: "Ask The Grand Masters"

Post-Convention Class

11 November 2019 , Monday | Day 3

1000 - 1700 The Art of using the Luopan

Master Yap Boh Chu

As most of us knew, the Luopan is an essential tool for Feng Shui practitioner, and at its most basic, it is being used to measure direction. So, what is the art of using the Luopan? One must know where to stand to measure, how to hold the Luopan properly, at what height to measure. How about the opening of the Luopan? Is there a ritual? What is the meaning of these rituals? Even the way the needle of the heaven pool reacts in certain situations has a meaning. These are the some of the questions that will be answered by Master Yap Boh Chu during this hands-on course. Bring your own Luopan and you could work on the proper way to handle and use your Luopan in various situations in and around the classroom.
